Former TJC president

Dr. H.E. Jenkins dies, legacy lives

Former Tyler Junior College President Dr. Harry E. Jenkins, 84, died Nov. 14 after a long illness. With his death passes the guiding force behind the college from 1934 to 1981.

He began his 47-year career at TJC as dean, becoming president in 1946. He was named chancellor in 1980 and became president emeritus upon his retirement in June 1981.

Within an hour of his death the flag in front of Jenkins Hall was lowered to half-mast and Dr. Raymond M. Hawkins, TJC president, in tribute announced the cancellation of all classes and the closing of all offices on the day of Jenkins' funeral.

Hawkins also announced the establishment of a memorial scholarship fund in Jenkins' name.

On Jenkins passing Hawkins said: "The entire Tyler Junior College family, including the board of trustees, the administration, faculty, staff and students express very deep sorrow at the passing of Dr. Jenkins, who, without a doubt built the institution and reputation it has today.

"Our deepest sympathies go out to the family and we take tremendous pride in the legacy Dr. Jenkins has left us which will live forever at TJC."

Jenkins was the first junior college president to become president of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools and was elected to lifetime membership in the Southern Association in 1972 — the highest recognition the Association can bestow.

Before his association with TJC, Jenkins was an assistant superintendent of Tyler public schools from 1934 to 1946. Prior to that he was a high school principal, superintendent and basketball coach of schools in Girard, Kan.

Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower appointed him to the steering committee of the Southern Regional Conference of the President's Commission on Education Beyond the High School in 1956. Jenkins was also the first junior college president ever to serve as president of the Association of Texas Colleges and Universities, a group composed of 100 two-year and four-year colleges.

Jenkins also served as president of the Texas Association of Public Junior Colleges and as president of the Texas Association of College Teachers.

His professional memberships included the National Commission on Accrediting, the Advisory Committee of the Veterans Administration, the then 10-member Advisory Commission to the U.S. Office of Education Division of the National Defense Act for Loans to College Students and the Commission on Standards, Classifications and Accrediting of the Texas Association of Colleges and Universities.

He was recipient of the Distinguished Service Award of the National Junior College Athletic Association for his "outstanding contributions to the national junior college movement," and was co-author in 1954 with a University of Michigan professor of

Dr. Harry E. Jenkins

"A Guide for Self-Evaluation of Junior Colleges." This publication was reprinted five times.

Jenkins also co-authored the official publication of the American Council of Education of the American Junior Colleges.

Jenkins received a B.S. degree in 1924 from Kansas State College, an M.A. degree from the University of Missouri in 1930 and a Ph.D. degree from the University of Texas at Austin in 1942.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Wink Jenkins, a son, Harry E. Jenkins Jr. and a sister.

Songwriter Will Jennings TJC Distinguished Alumnus

Academy Award-winning songwriter Will Jennings was given the prestigious Tyler Junior College "Distinguished Alumnus Award" during homecoming activities in November.

Jennings won the 1983 Academy Award for best song from a motion picture, "Up Where We Belong" from the movie "An Officer and a Gentleman."

The Kilgore native grew up in New Chapel Hill and attended New Chapel Hill High School. At TJC he was a journalism major and played in the Apache Band and jazz ensemble.

After TJC, he studied languages for one year at the University of Texas at Austin before earning a bachelor's and master's degree from Stephen F. Austin State University.

In 1967 he returned to TJC to teach English before joining the faculty at the University of Wisconsin in Eau Claire.

He moved to Nashville, Tenn. in 1971 to pursue a songwriting career, and several years later he moved to Los Angeles.

Since then Jennings has written songs that have sold more than 20 million records by artists including Dionne Warwick, Steve Winwood, Joe Cocker, The Crusaders, Barry Manilow, Randy Crawford and Jennifer Warnes.

His most famous hits are "I'll Never Love This Way Again" and "No Night So Long" by Dionne Warwick; "Somewhere in the Night," by Helen Reddy and later Barry Manilow; "Street Life" by the Crusaders; and "While You See A Chance," a comeback hit for Steve Winwood.

"Up Where We Belong," performed by Joe Cocker and Jennifer Warnes, was number one for three weeks in 1982 and sold three million singles around the world. The song also won the Tokyo Song Festival Award and a performance Grammy for Cocker and Warnes, and the Golden Globe and Academy Award for Jennings and co-writers Buffy St. Marie and Jack Nitzche.

Currently Jennings is involved in several projects in the music business. He has written two new songs for feature films to be released in the fall and winter, "Here's That Sunny Day" for the movie "The Buddy System" and "Blue Skies Forever for the movie "All The Right Moves."

Hudnall gives Presidential Scholarships

The acceptance of a gift to Tyler Junior College from Tyler geologist and philantropist J.S. Hudnall for two Presidential Scholarships of $25,000 each was announced in November by Jack Flock, TJC Foundation Board president.

"In this gift we see again another supreme example of the generosity of Mr. Hudnall, and the Foundation and the Development Council appreciate so much his making these scholarships available," Flock said.

The Presidential Scholarship program was recently established by the TJC Foundation in an effort to recruit outstanding high school graduating seniors to the college without regard to financial need.

In accepting the gift on behalf of the college TJC President Dr. Raymond M. Hawkins said: "We are deeply grateful to Mr. Hudnall for his unselfish, generous and living gift to Tyler Junior College. Because Mr. Hudnall has the vision to see beyond the present, many more academically talented young persons will be attracted to the college."

In making this gift to TJC Hudnall said: "Scholarships are the thing I believe in most. I believe in helping young people that are willing to work and help themselves.

"Scholarships are the thing I believe in most."

"The young people are going to run this country in another generation and we need to think, what can we do to help the present generation. We've got to educate them. There is no substitute for education.

"I have a lot of faith in young people and I get a lot of personal satisfaction out of helping them."

Hudnall is a long-time benefactor of TJC. He gave large sums of money toward the establishment of Hudnall Planetarium in 1963 and has made subsequent contributions towards its operation.

He is also the donor of Hudnall Hall, a recently completed dormitory that accomodates 98 men, and through the years has given many other scholarships to the college as well as made contributions to the TJC Foundation.

For 43 years he was a member of the firm of Hudnall & Pirtle, Consulting Geologists and Petroleum Engineers. At the present time he and his son Ogden operate a business largely in investments.

Hudnall holds a bachelor's degree in geology and an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Kentucky. He did post graduate work in mining geology at Penn State University and the University of Chicago.

His civic honors include the prestigious T.B. Butler Publishing Company Award for outstanding citizen of Tyler in 1955 and the Boy Scouts of America Silver Beaver Award.

Tyler Junior College President Dr. Raymond M. Hawkins accepts two Presidential Scholarships of $25,000 each from Tyler geologist and philantropist J.S. Hudnall.

Baker promoted

Development, college relations VP named

The Tyler Junior College Board of Trustees this month approved the appointment of C.C. Baker Jr. as associate vice president for development and college relations.

Baker, who served as principal of John Tyler High School from 1974-1982, is well known in Tyler as an educator, administrator, civic and church leader.

"We in Tyler have for some time recognized Mr. Baker's administrative and human relations skills," TJC President Dr. Raymond M. Hawkins said.

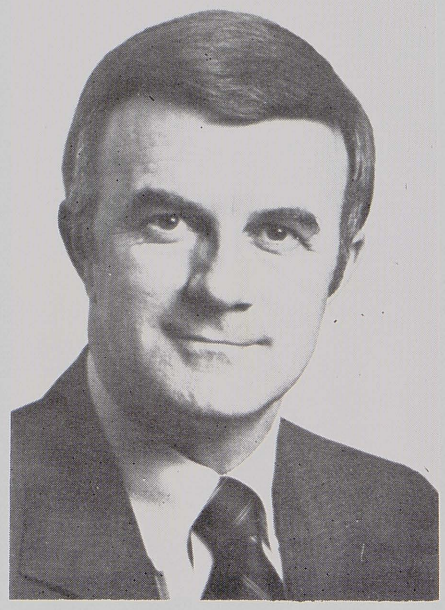
"It is appropriate at a time when Tyler Junior College is experiencing significant growth in enrollment and its educational programs that we take key steps to ensure the success of our endeavors," Hawkins said. "One of those steps is to utilize Mr. Baker as the person in charge of the College's total development effort," he added.

In October Hawkins appointed Baker to be director of development and college relations.

The president explained Baker's duties: "He will continue to manage the College's resource development work, with emphasis on the Tyler Junior College Foundation, but he now also assumes responsibility over information services, publications, and alumni relations."

Baker served as administrative assistant in the development department at Texas Christian University in 1963-64.

In TISD, Baker also served as assistant principal at John Tyler, assistant principal at Dogan Junior High and head coach and social studies teacher at Hogg Junior High.



C.C. Baker, Jr.

Prior to that, Baker was assistant coach and social studies teacher at Stripling Junior High School in Fort Worth. He holds a bachelor of science in education and a master of education in public school administration from TCU. He completed an advanced educational administration program at Stephen F. Austin State University.

Baker's civic activities include the Tyler Kiwanis Club, of which he was formerly a vice president; past president of the Smith County Association for Retarded Citizens, and former member of the Tyler-Smith County Juvenile Attention Center Board and Tyler Crime Stoppers Board.

A member of First Christian Church, Baker has served as a deacon and elder and board member of both that church and University Christian Church. He currently serves on the Christian Youth Foundation Board and is the immediate past president.

In his position at John Tyler High School, Baker implemented a peer tutoring system and a compensatory reading lab, served with the superintendent to develop the instructional organization for the four-year high school in Tyler and helped develop new high school special education curriculum.

He organized the faculty and staff planning for a $3 million bond program at John Tyler and, after the 1981 fire at John Tyler, he helped organize the planning for the $6 million reconstruction and implemented transition plans for the 2,000 student body and staff.

Professionally, he is the TJC liaison with the Council for the Advancement and Support of Education and the National Council for Resource Development.

Baker's wife Brenda is a music instructor and church organist and they have two children, Alison and Joel.

Baker stated, "For more than 50 years Tyler Junior College has played a vital role in the growth and progress of Tyler and East Texas. I am pleased to be a part of the dynamic present and future of this outstanding College."

Van Cleef receives award

Dr. Raymond Van Cleef, TJC vice president of educational and student services, was honored this month by the American Baseball Coaches Association at a luncheon in the Hyatt Regency Hotel in Dallas.

He was given a plaque for his contributions in baseball and distinguished career in education.

Van Cleef, former Detroit Tigers baseball player, Sul Ross State University coach and All-American at Rutgers, was honored along with four others including Bobby Bragan, Texas Rangers administrator and Rangers' owner Eddie Chiles.

Van Cleef said of the many awards he has received during his lifetime, the ABCA Award represents the culmination of his athletic experience. It says, "You have arrived and you are successful."

Van Cleef came to TJC in June 1983 from Tarrant County Junior College where he had been dean of student development from 1969-1975 and dean of instruction since 1975.

He holds a bachelor's degree from Rutgers University, a master of education degree from Sul Ross University and a doctorate degree from the University of Wyoming.

Palmore — musician, artist, steamboat pilot

Countless times you have, no doubt, said "I wish I had the time to study music, or study art, or collect artifacts, or the time to do something exciting!" If not those specific things, maybe there are others that have cropped up in your mind.

Nevertheless, Lexie Palmore, a 1967 graduate of Tyler Junior College is doing all of the above, and plans to do even more — in her SPARE time!

After obtaining her A.A. degree with high honors, Lexie pursued further education in commercial art at North Texas State University and Stephen F. Austin University. She accomplished her goals by obtaining a bachelor's degree at NTSU, and a master's degree at SFA.

After college she went to work for the Dallas Federal Reserve Bank as a commercial artist, but found something lacking in her day-to-day existence. What did she do, you ask? She became a steamboat pilot! That's right — a steamboat pilot with the Delta Queen Steamboat Company based in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Lexie did not begin as a pilot with the company but as a maid. Soon, executives noticed her in the pilot's room steering the boat and decided to send her to school to learn the difficult technicalities involved in piloting a steamboat. She readily accepted this challenge, and studied feverishly during the 22-month course at the National River Academy located in Helena, Ark.

She holds the rank of captain and logged more than 1,800 miles in her four years as a pilot on the Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

Life for Lexie on the famous rivers was more than merely guiding the Delta Queen back and forth, ferrying passengers to and from New Orleans and St. Louis. As an artist, she continuously looked for — and found — scenery throughout her river trips that served as inspiration in her art work.

She is also a musician — formerly with the East Texas Symphony and the TJC Symphony, and states that her musicianship has also given her inspiration for several pieces of art, many that were exhibited in Tyler's Olde English Village last November. She is greatly inspired by such things as Tyler's Rose Festival and Azalea Trails, as well as the music she performs "just for myself" on a refurbished Pilcher pipe organ that she purchased, dismantled, and reassembled in her Tyler studio.

This accomplishment — which might seem a bit much for the average person, is just another in a long list of everyday happenings in the life of Lexie. She found the instrument in Evansville, Ind. during one of her riverboat jaunts. It has 300 pipes, four ranks, and two manuals, and takes up a large portion of her 14x28 studio. She believes it to be the only privately-owned pipe organ in Tyler.

Also in the studio is a collection of musical instruments owned by Lexie, including a dulcimer that was made by her, two banjos, a set of bagpipes, trombones, pianos, violins, concertinas and a reed organ. Her desire is to one day learn to play them all.

Lexie lives at home with her parents, Bill and Willie Palmore. Her father is a retired Tyler business man, and her mother teaches anatomy and biology at TJC. Her parents have been very supportive of her many accomplishments, but frowned a bit on her becoming a riverboat pilot. The Palmores have been Lexie's guests on the Delta Queen and consider it one of the highlights of their lives, she said.

And there's one thing more — in Lexie's spare time these days, she serves as a consultant for a group of people trying to find the Mittie Stephens, a sunken riverboat in Lake Caddo near Jefferson. The riverboat was sunk in 1869 and a probable location has been determined, although Lexie and her staff believe the riverboat is buried under several feet of mud.

Poet Ric Masten holds performance

Last fall, TJC faculty and students had an opportunity to enjoy a rare and special performance by poet-performer Ric Masten in the Jean Browne Theatre on campus.

Masten carries on the oral tradition of America through performances of work from his eight published volumes of poetry, stories and songs. He says his favorite audience is made up of people who would normally regard an hour with a poet as cruel and unusual punishment.

Masten's works speak to the human condition, to those emotions and experiences that we all, as participating members of the human race, share commonly. His appeal, therefore, is not only a literary or artistic one but one of tremendously wide scope.

The program was sponsored by the Student Activities Office and members of Las Mascaras, speech and drama organization.

Counselors learn communication skills

More than 100 counselors from the East Texas area were on campus in November attending a meeting of the Piney Woods Personnel and Guidance Association.

Guest speaker was Dr. Robert Cox, dean of the School of Education and Psychology at the University of Texas at Tyler. His speech, "Variables That Affect Communication," was designed to aid communication skills with parents, teachers and administrative personnel.

TJC planetarium has 20th birthday

Hudnall Planetarium celebrated its 20th birthday on Nov. 24 with a record of more than 400,000 persons having attended one of the hour long programs by the anniversary date.

Planned as a space age educational facility for the entire East Texas areas, its programs are geared to kindergarten through high school levels as well as the general public.

J.S. Hudnall, Tyler geologist and philantropist, gave large sums of money toward the establishment of the planetarium in 1963 and has made subsequent contributions towards its operation.

The first program, "Exploring the Farthest Reaches of Space," was presented by Dr. George Abell of the American Astronomical Society.

Students from approximately 800 schools and colleges from well-over 100 differents cities have repeatedly attended programs since that first presentation. Often classes have traveled in school buses bearing placards and banners pertaining to the planetarium visit.

Serving as director for the first four years was I.L. Friedman, now TJC administrative consultant. His wife, Frances Friedman, has been director for the past 16 years.

"Since our nation is committed to the exploration of space and the results are issues of international concern, not only scientists but all citizens need a basic understanding of astronomy," Mrs. Friedman says, "and Hudnall Planetarium provided all age groups with this basis understanding.

"Programs at the planetarium stimulate the student's intellectual curiosity at an early age. Beyond mere factual information, however, is the inspirational quality of planetarium programs.

"By showing the student what happens and how to observe, the planetarium quickens the student's imagination to make him want to learn more science."

Tennis workshops set for April 17-19

TJC will host tennis workshops April 17-19 for teachers, coaches, advanced players and interested tennis enthusiasts.

Teaching the workshops will be Dennis Van der Meer, president of the U.S. Professional Tennis Registry, and "one of the most innovative and knowledgeable tennis teachers in the world," Steve Smith, TJC tennis program coordinator, said.

The program comes in two packages. Package I is a three-day workshop, costs $245., and includes 21 hours of lecture and on-court presentation, certification test fee and a first-year membership in U.S.P.T.R.

Package II is a one-day workshop, costs $50., and includes five hours of lecture and on-court presentation on April 17.

The program schedule is as follows:

Sunday, April 17, 1-6 p.m. Topics are Advanced Players - Back to Basics, Evolution of Stroke Production, Practice, Drills in Static, Dynamic and Match Situations, Singles and Doubles Tactics and Tennis Psychology.

Monday, April 18, all day. Topics are Qualities of a Professional, Interrelationship of Strokes, Teaching by Progressions, Group Teaching and Stroke-Production.

Tuesday, April 19, all day. Topics are Stroke Production, Review, Question and Answer Session, U.S.P.T.R. Skills Test, Teaching Test and Written Test.

Persons interested in the workshops or need more information may call Smith at 214/531-2473 or 595-3644.

Texas CC Week celebrated in Nov.

TJC celebrated Texas Community College Week Nov. 13-19 with a day-by-day schedule of activities planned around the theme, "A Good Neighbor — Your Community College."

Visiting the campus during the week were area media, the TJC Foundation Development Council, retired faculty, superintendents and principals from 14 independent school districts in East Texas and the Education Committee of the Tyler Chamber of Commerce.

FUTURE TEACHERS — The 1983-84 "recreation tennis teaching" class represents 22 states and five foreign countries. These students spend about 15 hours a week in tennis-related programs using a full spectrum of teaching aids from lab work to on-campus tennis clinics and operating pro shops to videotapes.

TJC has the only tennis degree program in the United States

Tyler Junior College is the only college in the United States with a highly developed curriculum for teaching tennis, and the only college to give a degree upon completetion of the two-year program.

This program not only trains students in teaching tennis but also teaches them how to plan programs for tennis facilities, merchandising and operating pro shops, and care and maintenance of tennis facilities, Steve Smith, instructor/program coordinator of recreation leadership, said.

Upon graduation, students receive an associate in applied science degree in recreation with a major in tennis.

Tennis is a multi-million dollar industry with several diversified avenues of opportunities, Smith said. They range from the business aspects to the instructional parts at community centers, schools, camps, hotels and resorts, private clubs and independent contracting.

Smith is a graduate of the program and returned as TJC's tennis program coordinator in the fall of 1981. He has studied the game extensively throughout the United States and has been personally trained to teach tennis by nationally known teachers Dennis Van der Meer, Welby Van Horn and Vic Braden.

TJC tennis coach Fred Kniffen contributes greatly to the teaching program, Smith said. Kniffen's tennis-related experiences span over a period of better than 20 years including having coached teams to National Junior College championships.

In December, Smith and 12 students journeyed to Southern California for the U.S. Tennis Academy conducted by Vic Braden.

4th Madrigal Dinner held in December

TJC Chamber Singers presented the 4th Annual Madrigal Dinner "Ye Olde Yuletide Feast" Dec. 9 and 10 to a capacity crowd in the Student Center on campus.

All the regal pageanty and ceremonial pomp of Merrie Olde England came to life with the procession of Singers through the hall, the hoisting of a sparkling toast from the wassail bowl and the procession of litter bearers with the boar's head.

Also, the serenading of the minstrels and recorder consort at guests tables, the procession of servants with the dessert flambe and the singing of the concert by the Chamber Singers.

Trustees establish Jenkins Scholarship

Donations are being received for the Dr. Harry E. Jenkins Memorial Scholarship Fund recently established by the TJC Board of Trustees.

TJC President Dr. Raymond M. Hawkins said the scholarships will serve as a lasting reminder of the significant life and work of Dr. Jenkins.

"Donations are being accumulated and placed in an endowment fund with the interest used to issue scholarships," Hawkins said, "and accurate accounting is being maintained by Ken Dance, associate vice president for financial and administrative services."

College faculty, staff and alumni have the opportunity to contribute at the level each individual feels is appropriate, Hawkins said.

Those wishing to make a gift to the scholarship fund may do so by sending a check made payable to the Dr. Harry E. Jenkins Memorial Scholarship Fund. Mail to Tyler Junior College, Box 9020, Tyler, Texas 75711.

All donations are tax deductible.

Apache football team third in conference

The Apache football team finished third in the Texas Junior College Football Conference, winning four games, losing five and tying one.

Games won: Kilgore; Wharton; Blinn, twice

Games lost: Kilgore; Cisco; North East Oklahoma; Navarro, twice

Game tied: Henderson County Junior College, conference champs

TJC defensive coach Rick Langley said he was disappointed but the season was about what was predicted. He said the coaches were disappointed the team didn't play well enough in "the big ball game" with Navarro and disappointed that "we did not see a lot of emotion in our kids in the HCJC game.

"Next year we have 24 freshmen coming back to TJC and we are losing only six sophomore starters. We feel like we can be a really fine football team next year, but we have a lot of work to do.

"We are also very excited about Ronnie Duckworth coming back next year."

Opera set Feb. 22

TJC and UT Tyler will present "Madam Butterfly" at 8 p.m., Wednesday, Feb. 22 in Wise Auditorium on campus. Tickets for the Texas Opera Theater production are $5 for adults and $2 for students.

Tickets may be purchased at the TJC Business Office, UT Tyler Bookstore and the Melody Shop.

College gridders on TJCFC Team

Four TJC Apache football players were named on the 1983 All-Texas Junior College Football Conference team.

Named to the offensive team were tailback Ronnie Ducksworth, 6-1, 232 pound freshman who gained 1,630 rushing yards (more than any running back in TJCFC history and led the conference in rushing by 300 yards), and wide receiver Henry Hill, 6-3, 198 pound sophomore who led the league in yards per catch (22.3 and six touchdowns).

Named to the defensive team were tackle Dalvin Benn, 6-3, 238 pound sophomore and defensive back Wilbert Jefferson, 5-10, 175 pound sophomore.

Receiving honorable mention were TJC defensive tackle Jeff Nutall, linebacker Kip Cooper, punter Greg Abbey, offensive linesmen John Newell and Reymond Leione.

TJC 10th Annual Pops Concert held

The 10th annual TJC Pops Concerts were held two nights in November in Wise Auditorium on campus.

One concert featured the TJC Choir and "Good Vibrations" from Robert E. Lee High School in Tyler. The other performance spotlighted the TJC Apache Band and the John Tyler High School "J.T. Dimension."

"Harmony and Understanding" appeared both evenings as did the "Smith County Philhormonic."

New PE courses started in fall 1983

Two new physical education courses are now being offered at TJC — HPE and PE 223-Sports Understanding.

HPE, first offered in the fall of 1983, is required for all entering freshmen, Dr. Billy Jack Doggett, physical education division director, said, and is designed to improve a student's quality of fitness for life.

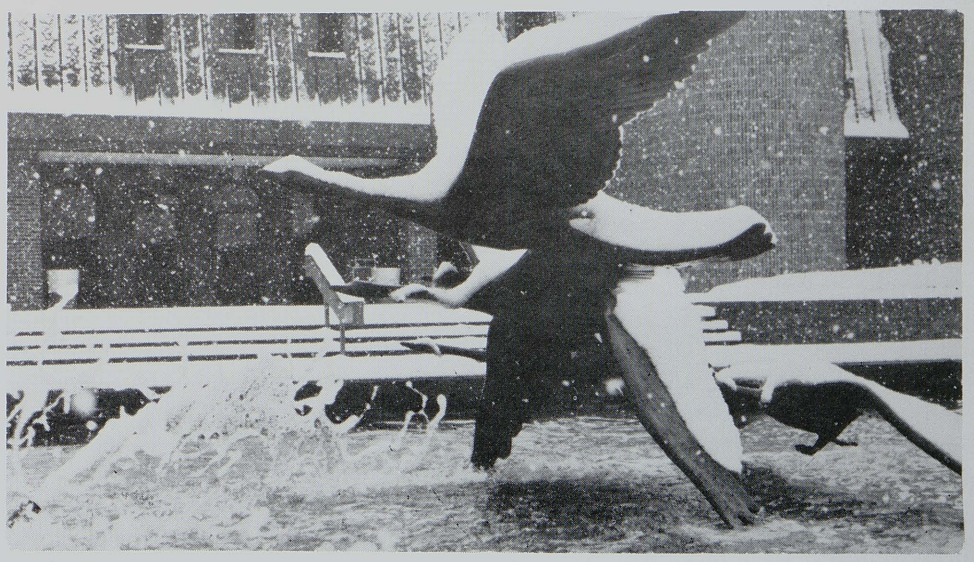
The course can be applied towards physical education requirements for graduation from a senior college or university.

Offered for the first time this spring is PE 223-Sports Understanding.

"The theme of the new course is understanding sports as they relate to physical fitness," Doggett said, "and is being taught by Dr. Nancy Laird, TJC physical education instructor who has national level coaching and competitive experience."

The course carries three college credit hours and includes lecture, discussion, research and participation exercise and aerobic activities.

TJC ROYALTY — The 1983 Homecoming Queen is 19-year-old Cyndi Trahan, a computer science major from Hemphill. Nominated by the Cheerleaders, Trahan was elected by the student body from 37 nominees.



ALL ON A WINTER'S DAY — The day before Christmas break, the campus became a wonderland of white as snow blanketed the campus. One example is the sculpture in front of the Watson W. Wise and Emma Wise Cultural Arts Center.
